EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with John Magluyan, Esq., on July 12, 2006.

The application has been amended as follows:

In the Title

The title has been changed to:

--Method, system and medium for remotely managing plural image forming apparatuses and plural types of maintenance agreements relating to the apparatuses--.

In the Claims

At claim 1, line 9: "apparatuses" has been replaced with --apparatus--.

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Claim 1:

The prior art of record neither anticipates nor fairly and reasonably teaches a remote managing system for managing plural image forming apparatuses and plural types of maintenance agreements relating to the image forming apparatuses comprising: a receiver that receives information of a number of printed paper sheets output by an image forming apparatus, together with an identifier of the image forming apparatus, via a communication path; a memory that stores a variety of unit prices per paper sheet to be output by each of the image forming apparatuses, wherein each of the variety of unit prices is associated with an identifier of an image forming apparatus and a type of maintenance agreement for the image forming apparatus; and a calculation section that calculates a payable amount for an image forming apparatus having the identifier on the basis of (i) the number of printed paper sheets received by said receiver, associated with the identifier and (ii) a unit price of the variety of unit prices, stored in said memory, associated with the identifier and the type of maintenance agreement for the image forming apparatus (see claim 1).

The most closely applicable prior art of record is referred to in the Office Action mailed January 10, 2006, as "Farrell" (U.S. Patent No. 5,383,129). Farrell discloses similar structural components and functionality of receiving the number of printed paper sheets output by an image forming apparatus, storing a variety of unit prices per paper sheet, and calculating a payable amount based on the number of printed sheets and a unit price of the variety of unit prices. However, Farrell does not anticipate or fairly and reasonably teach managing plural image forming devices, receiving the number of paper sheets along with an identifier of an image forming apparatus, storing a variety of unit prices associated with an identifier of the image forming apparatus, and calculating a payable amount based on the number of printed sheets associated with the identifier and the unit price associated with the identifier and type of maintenance agreement.

Newly cited U.S. Patent No. 7,061,634 B1 (hereafter referred to as "Ogura") discloses a system and method for supervising image forming apparatuses including a plurality of images forming apparatuses connecting through communication lines to a central control apparatus wherein usage information such as the total number of image formed sheets per image forming apparatus is transmitted to and stored in the central control apparatus (see Abstract, Figures 36 and 37, col. 11, lines 35-60, and col. 26, lines 6-15). However, Ogura does not anticipate or fairly and reasonably teach storing a plurality of unit prices per paper sheet or calculating a payable amount for an image forming apparatus based on the usage and the unit price associated with the identifier. Furthermore, it would not have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to have modified the system and method Farrell with the teachings of Ogura to manage a plurality of apparatuses, to receive usage information (i.e. number of printed sheets) per image forming apparatus, and then to calculate a payable amount based on the usage and unit price associated with each identifier.

Newly cited U.S. Patent No. 5,708,909 (hereafter referred to as “Yamashita”) discloses an equipment management system in which electric photocopiers are linked through a network (i.e. a communication path) with a host computer at a maintenance company and another host computer at a lease company wherein data including the copier identification (ID), maintenance agreement information and the total count of copies provided by the copier are transmitted to the maintenance company host computer, and data regarding the total count are transmitted from the maintenance host to the lease company host. However, Yamashita does not anticipate or fairly and reasonably teach storing this data or performing calculations based on the usage and unit prices associated with each device. Furthermore, it would not have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to have modified the system and method Farrell with the teachings of Yamashita to manage a plurality of apparatuses, to receive usage information (i.e. number of printed sheets) per image forming apparatus, and then to calculate a payable amount based on the usage and unit price associated with each identifier.

Claim 7.

Claim 7 recites a remote managing method of calculating a charge for use of each of a plurality of image forming apparatuses by a user. The method comprising the steps consistent with and parallel to the limitations of claim 1. This method is allowable over the prior art for reasons consistent with those identified above with response to claim 1.

Claim 12.

Claim 12 recites an article of manufacture comprising a computer program stored in a computer-readable medium for a remote managing method for calculating a charge for use of each of a plurality of image forming apparatuses by a user. As discussed in the Office Action mailed May 31, 2005, the program is interpreted to be executable by a computer (see Specification, page 88, lines 22-23) and is therefore statutory under 32 U.S.C. §101. The medium when executed by a computer causes the computer to perform the method steps for executing commands to perform operations comprising steps which are consistent with and parallel to the limitations of claim 1. This article of manufacturer method is allowable over the prior art for reasons consistent with those identified above with response to claim 1.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure: Author unknown, "Lexmark Launches MarkTrack Printer Software to Slash Printing Costs," M2 Presswire, Coventry, Sep. 10, 1999, pg. 1, discloses software for managing plural image forming apparatuses that captures information on location, usage and condition of networked apparatuses from a single point.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
